

ANGELS OF WALES

DISCOVER THE STORY OF A RARE SHARK AND ITS WELSH CONNECTION

Angelsharks were once common, gliding over the seabeds of the East Atlantic and Mediterranean. This amazing species has disappeared from much of its range, and is now Critically Endangered. An important population remains in Wales, and we need your help to safeguard it.

Share your Angelshark stories, memories or photos.

Volunteer with our History of Angels research project, to unearth clues in local libraries, archives and museums.

Join the Angelshark History Roadshow as it travels around Wales from January-March 2019.

Find out more: angelsharknetwork.com/wales

Contact us: angelsharks@zsl.org or 07918 361828

You may also know this shark as monkfish, bafoon or fiddle fish